Things seemed to be going great between the two for the first few months just like any other normal relationship but then something just didn't seem right.....Oddly enough Ryan knew something was wrong yet didn't know what.

His girlfriend stopped spending time with him, started giving dry responses to questions and stopped being physically intimate with him. And then the unthinkable happened.

Ryan was alarmed...His heart rate tripled...He could sense what was coming but didn't want to face it.

He didn't really understand what she meant by giving each other some space...And before he could ask her more questions she made an excuse about being very busy...said I have to rush and hung up!

Poor Ryan did not have the love of his life anymore...Now he had a bag of heavy emotions to deal with and not the least of all a hurt self-esteem.

Don't know about you...
